Italian Front: Campaigns of 1918

Vittorio-Veneto Oct. 24—Nov. 4 ---- 1,200

Of the 42 divisions that reached France 29 took part in active combat service. Seven of these were Regulars, eleven were organized from the National Guards and eleven made up of National Army troops.

American divisions were in battle 200 days and engaged in 13 major operations.

From the middle of August until the end of the war, American divisions held, during the greater part of the time, a longer line in the front than the British. In October 101 miles, or 23 per cent of the entire western front was held by American troops.

In the first of April, the Germans held a superiority of 324,000 in rifle strength, but due to American arrivals, the Allied strength exceeded that of the Germans in June, and was more than 600,000 above it in November.

Georgia's Dead

Of all the resources of Georgia, the most precious contribution which the State made was her men, most of whom were youths in age and experience, and no history of Georgia's participation in the World War would be complete without a roster of Georgians who made the supreme sacrifice, or who were wounded.

The lists of Georgians, which follow, who died in battle; from disease or accident, while serving in the Army, and the Marine Corps, during World War, are taken from the records found in the Military Department, State of Georgia. Using the utmost care and diligence, even rechecking the roster, there still exists a discrepancy of fifteen names. The total secured from the records in Georgia is 540, while official Washington gives Georgia a total battle death of 525. It is granted that the information contained on these cards, in many cases, is as indefinite as it is incomplete. This, however, is not the fault of, nor is it intended to be a reflection upon the Military Department, State of Georgia, as it only accepted what was received from higher and original sources.

The list of battle deaths, and deaths from natural or accidental causes of Georgians serving in the Navy, was taken from an official publication of the Navy Department, published 1920.

In a section devoted to the negroes of Georgia will be found a roster of colored Georgians who made the supreme sacrifice, or were wounded. No list was compiled of those who died of diseases in France or in the United States, or those who perished in accidents, or from other causes. The greater number of negroes in Georgia were inducted into service and the majority of deaths in this race were from pneumonia or its complications.

The lists of wounded, Army, white and colored, and the Marine Corps, are taken from the records in the Military Department, State of Georgia.

The list of Georgians, dying of disease or accidents in the American Expeditionary Forces, embraces that period from April 6, 1917 until the return of the American forces to the United States. Definite dates, however, were necessary for the compilation of a list of American soldiers who died while being trained in the various camps in the United States. These dates being from April 6, 1917 to December 1, 1918.

It is readily acknowledged that many Georgians who served, have died since their return to civil life, whose deaths could be traced to wounds or diseases contracted while in the service of the Nation. And there are many Georgians now suffering physical handicaps—the result of their service in the World War. All these men too, rightfully, should be numbered among those who have contributed all or much upon the altar of patriotism.

“PALMAM QUI MERUIT FERRAT”

(Let him bear the palm who has deserved it).

Georgia's Dead

*High on the mountain's granite cloud-rests, carve
The record of our boys o'seas; tell how—
Though far away from home's familiar scenes—
They fought for freedom's hearth-stone fires,
To make the world safe for democracy.
Tell how above the conflict's roar they heard
A voice and, on the midnight sky of France,
They saw a face, both of which spoke of one
Who, on her knees, in far America,
Was lifting battlefields to God. Tell how
They fought at St. Mihiel; how undismayed
They fell'd the Argonne forest: how unblanch'd
They stood mid the trenches; how they pierc'd
Hindenberg's line, suppos'd to be, till then,
Impregnable, now but a spider's web—
They won because they were Americans!
Hell-gate itself could not withstand the fires
That volley'd from the guns of Pershing's men!
Then tell, in softer cadence, how today,
Beneath the lilies of that distant land,
In many a silent battle-mound, they sleep
Who fell besides the Marne, in Belleau Woods,
And at Verdun. 'Twas the same hero-strain
That, up the stony steeps of Gettysburg,
Urg'd Pickett's men to immortality:
That flushed in Pelham's cheek; that glorified
Our Conquer'd Banner on a thousand fields
Of victory. High upon the mountain brow,
Up there, in golden star-land's mystic mist,
Where our symbolic eagle builds his nest,
Carve every name—let not a name be lost—
Carve them where crystal sunbeams love to play,
Where loftiest lamps are lit, where dawn distils
Her holiest dews, and where untrodden snows
Are whitest, in the all-seeing eyes of God—
Where, on the summit, sighs the morning breeze,
There carve them all, and carve them close to Lee's!*
